FROM THE DATABASE COORDINATOR

The Tenn-Share DataFest and Fall Conference will be upon us very soon! The DataFest, held on Thursday, Oct. 29th, is free and includes not only vendor demonstrations of electronic resources, but also sessions on free databases, TEL training, and other meetings. See <http://www.tenn-share.org/datafest> for a schedule, more info and to register (it's FREE!).

The Fall Conference, "Smarter, Faster, Cheaper," held on Friday, Oct. 30th, offers many exciting programs describing innovative ways to do more with less. See <http://www.tenn-share.org/FallConference> for more info and to register ($30).

Both events are held in conjunction with the School Library Collection Fair (see <http://www.tenn-share.org/node/249>) at Nashville Public Library. Come enjoy a couple days of learning, seeing, doing, eating, discussing, and networking with your Tennessee colleagues!

If you are interested in joining our group purchases of Testing & Education Reference Center or AnatomyTV, please let me know ASAP! See below for details. Also, you might want to take advantage of the Swets/Ingram sale on ABC-Clio eBooks. More information and the vendor contact are below.

Our free database is Smarthistory, a multi-media art history resource.

FREE DATABASE: SMARTHISTORY

Smarthistory.org is a free multi-media web-book designed as a dynamic enhancement (or even substitute) for the traditional art history textbook. Dr. Beth Harris and Dr. Steven Zucker began smARThistory in 2005. Now supported by the Kress Foundation, it is keyword searchable or browseable by time period, artist, or style. <http://www.smarthistory.org/>
